A LIMPING LAY.

It's easy to be cheerful when the home team's going fine.

It's a cinch to wear an optimistic smile;

"We won out in the ninth" is like a melody divine When you're cashed your bets and won a nifty nile.

It's a pipe to boost the fellows who are fighting for the flag When they're out in front and gaining every length;
But it takes a "sport" to cheer them when their speed begins to lag,
And their batting seems bereft of all its strength.

day to welcome home our team at the Florida avenue inclosure, and the same of game old crowd saw our boys lose in the same old way. The score was 10 to 3 in favor of Chicago, the reason being about the same as has marked the Nationals' consistent losing streak during the past two weeks, the other fellows getting the most hits off our pitchers.

It was Walter Johnson against "Doc" White yesterday, and everybody expected a pitchers' battle. White was hit hard but Johnson harder, and besides, Walter tossed in free passes at critical stages. and Manager McAleer decided to pull him out in the sixth inning and substitute "Dixie" Walker. "Dixie" was touched up lively, but gave a fairly good account of himself. "Doc" White was a willing worker for five innings, and, complaining of a lame arm, retired in favor of Ed Walsh, who allowed but one hit during the remainder of the game.

New Faces on Sox Team.

The White Sox presented a number of new faces to local fans, and looked pretty good yesterday, but the general Impression seems to be that they are much weaker than in 1909. Johnson got away to a fine start, re tiring the White Sox almost in order during the first two innings, while the Nationals got to White for a chalk mark in the opener. Milan drew four bad ones, reached second on Conroy's sacrifice, and scored on Elberfeld's wicked without an error on second yesterday.

The third round was a weird affair Block shut his eyes and took a healthy swing at a high out-curve, driving the a scientific swat to left, meeting one of Walker. Johnson's speedy slants without swinging his bat. Zeider bunted to the pitcher's box and Walter slammed the ball to Elberfeld in an attempt to kill Block. Umpire Sheridan called the runner safe, and the bases were loaded. Collins grabbed his only hit of the game at this stage, a lucky single to right, sending home Block and White, and advancing Zeider to third. Gandil fanned, and Collins was thrown out stealing.
